Respecting your situation

You will be contacted by an experienced vocational rehabilitation consultant, who will manage your case throughout the whole process. He or she will be a personal contact for both you and your employer and will help everyone to reach the most reasonable conclusion.

Steps to a resolution

Your consultant will manage your case by establishing what you can do in relation to your current position and will suggest adjustments that could be made to make your life easier at work.

Assessment

We will provide an assessment of your case, possible solutions and next steps to help you get back to work.

Implementation

Your vocational rehabilitation consultant will work with you and your employer, to put together and deliver an action plan to help you to return to work. We will also be able to direct you to sources of support for personal issues.

Results

We will always aim to return you to work under circumstances that are right for both you and your employer. But, in the event that you cannot continue in your current role, we may be able to provide recommendations or suggestions for alternative career options.

Ready to assist

A consultant will contact you shortly to arrange an initial assessment of your situation in relation to your role. We always aim to deliver the most reasonable solutions and find a positive outcome for both you and your employer.
